COMMUNITY-PANCHAYAT UNITY FOR CHILD PROTECTION

Building on past years of engagement, the inter-agency participatory action research initiative, aimed at establishing a community-led child protection mechanism, is being implemented in two blocks of Jharkhand state. The project aims to understand the value added by bottom-up, community-led child protection initiatives, working in collaboration with the formal child protection systems. The new phase of the project, aims to strengthen collaboration between communities and panchayats to improve child protection outcomes in Jharkhand, aligning with the Government of India's Mission Vatsalya. Building on years of experience using the Community-Led Child Protection approach, the initiative supports communities and local governance structures to jointly identify, and act on child protection priorities. Around 320 people in Topchanchi and 434 in Khunti from diverse social groups are actively shaping this process. Praxis conducted community feedback processes across all 20 intervention sites.

HUMAN RIGHTS DUE DILIGENCE

In the light of the growing scope for participatory engagement as part of business value chain due diligence processes, the programme focused on creating a module on participatory human rights due diligence which emphasised an engagement-based approach with inclusion of the last mile. The aim was to build capacity of non-profit leaders to understand the process of participatory human rights due diligence and the broader mandate under the National Guidelines on Responsible Business Conduct (NGRBC). The programme was designed to reach out to stakeholders who are aware about business value chains but lack knowledge on due diligence processes and its scope. A two-day module was developed and rolled out at four regional workshops with 70+ participants.

BUSINESS-WORKER INTERFACE

To strengthen the business-worker interface in supply chains of garment and textile sector with a focus on existing grievance redressal practices, Praxis engaged with supply chain partners, businesses, and worker committees to map existing practices and evolved key principles. The study was undertaken with three groups of workers, three factory managements and nine experts besides a multi-stakeholder initiative. A set of parameters informed by existing practices, aspirations and key principles was developed to inform the programmatic action for the multistakeholder platform.

STRENGTHENING EDUCATION & ALTERNATE LIVELIHOODS

Phase three of the project focused on leadership development to amplify change, nurturing Community Awareness and Action Group (CAAG) amongst sanitation workers in Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh to facilitate access to education, and alternative livelihoods. These groups, who effectively discussed emerging concerns, were strengthened, linkages with social entitlements were built, a child learning education centre was effectively run and community-level events were organised. This year, 228 students received education support and 165 individuals received entrepreneurship support. 14 new villages were added to the programme, 489 forms were submitted under the Prohibition of Employment as Manual Scavengers and Their Rehabilitation Act, 2013 and 2,629 applications for social schemes were submitted. Continued engagement with 100+ youths in both states prodded them towards various existing opportunities.

Community action and awareness group meetings in progress in Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh

CHW-DELIVERED PUBLIC HEALTH INTERVENTION

Phase III of the project focused on improving community access to health, education, social protection schemes, and livelihood opportunities amongst Denotified and Nomadic Tribes (DNT) communities in Morena district, Madhya Pradesh and Krishnagiri district, Tamil Nadu. Based on the insights from the baseline, training and activities were rolled out. The project sought to establish an evidence-based participatory model of community development.. DNT youth were trained (photo below) as Community Health Workers (CHW) and Community Mobilisers to provide counselling on injury prevention, wound and burn care, safe water use, and health promotion, while fostering empathy and creating safe spaces. They were trained to support referrals to health care, alternative livelihoods and access to secondary education. The team built awareness on and access to social security programmes, visited Community Health Centres, PHCs, District Hospitals, and other departments to build linkages with available services and schemes, mapped the education, livelihood status and facilitated a skill workshop on National Rural Livelihoods Mission (NRLM) and theatre. Nearly 600 community members benefited from various schemes. CHWs visited 100+ households to promote safe drinking water, hygiene, sanitation (WASH), and first aid practices.

CREATING LIVELIHOOD MODELS FOR ULTRA POOR HOUSEHOLDS

The Meghalaya State Rural Livelihoods Society (MSRLS), in partnership with The/Nudge Institute, is implementing a three-year initiative to uplift 4,000 ultra-poor households across three districts. Praxis undertook a research to inform the development of implementation strategies for this programme, aiming for its scaling and strengthening. The programme follows the graduation approach which integrates livelihood generation, financial inclusion, social protection and empowerment, facilitating these households to break free from poverty. As part of the study, 601 surveys, 23 FGDs and 7 interviews were held to cover the following points: Livelihood Identification and understanding, Persona Development, Implementation Guidance, Economic Modelling and Psychological Mapping. The study took place in Umling of Ri-Bhoi District, Pynursla of East Khasi Hills District and Demdema of West Garo Hills district of Meghalaya..

KNOWLEDGE EXCHANGE CENTRES ON PUBLIC HEALTH

Praxis is part of a landscaping and design initiative called 'Centres for Exchange' which explores diverse approaches to knowledge exchange between communities and researchers in the context of public health, and to design more equitable, effective and meaningful roles for communities in the research ecosystem. The project aims to pilot a Centre for Exchange that places community participation at the heart of health research by promoting collaboration across diverse knowledge ecosystems and bridging the gap between researchers, medical practitioners, and communities for more inclusive, equitable, and effective health solutions. This year, the project created the pilot based on insights developed after in-depth interviews with key stakeholders from four health research organisations to understand their operational methodology for community engagement and knowledge exchange. A place-based design workshop (photo below) was held with participants from various organisations to explore the key insights from the analysis of the case studies and build a model for the Centres for Exchange.

BUILDING COMMUNITY RESILIENCE IN SUNDARBANS

Praxis anchors a consortium of seven organisations, working on a people-centred model of inclusive development in the ecologically vulnerable Sundarbans region of West Bengal as part of the Amplifying Community Voices project. Through this initiative, partners formed more than 100 collectives of adolescents, women farmers, marginal farmers and migrant workers in Patharpratima block of South 24 Parganas district, working on, gender-based violence, child protection, climate adaptive livelihoods, strengthening local self-governance and gender-based violence. Over the year, Praxis anchored the consortium's journey by facilitating mid-term review, community-led Theories of Change, perspective building of partner staff, trainings on visual documentation and anchoring adolescent climate clubs (photo below) to input into conversations at different levels. As part of the consortium's initiatives, women's collectives planted 25,000 mangrove saplings to strengthen embankments with an 84% survival rate. Women participated in GPDP in five panchayats contributing to local decision-making. Climate Club adolescents and youth presented their initiatives at several government and non-government platforms.

REIMAGINING SCHOOL WITH CHILDREN

Children

Praxis carried out a participatory needs assessment study around a 135-year-old educational institution in Bengaluru in Karnataka, India, which aimed to reimagine the school as a nurturing hub, shaped by all its stakeholders, especially its children. The study engaged with girls studying in government as well as private schools around the area outlined their understanding of schools, capturing information from infrastructure, hygiene, teaching, safety, discipline, sports as well as extra curricular activities. The findings unpacked factors such as equity, dignity, power-sharing, compassion and camaraderie and a pedagogy of curiosity.

BUILDING ORGANISATIONAL CAPACITY

The 26th edition of TheWorkshop took place at the ECC, Bengaluru, between November 4 and 9, 2024. The event brought together 26 participants from various parts of India and other countries including the United Kingdom, Nepal, Iran, Cambodia, Philippines and Sri Lanka.

The workshop featured modules on Participatory Methods and Approaches with two electives

1. Worker and Community -Led Due Diligence
2. Measuring Collectivisation

TheWorkshop2024 brought together more than 75% women participants. The modules were designed to delve into critical aspects of participation in both the above contexts, creating spaces for cross-cultural and insightful discussions.

COMPLIANCE

COMPLIANCE WITH SEXUAL HARASSMENT OF WOMEN AT THE WORKPLACE (PREVENTION, PROHIBITION AND REDRESSAL) ACT 2013

No incidents of sexual harassment were reported in the financial year 2024-25.

The PoSH committee met during the past year to plan activities around building awareness and sensitising the team on implications of sexual harassment.

As a follow-up, during the annual retreat organised in February 2025, the team organised a detailed session on Gender and PoSH. The session's primary objective was generating dialogue to challenge assumptions, explore the evolving nature of gender identity and roles, and highlight the significance of embedding a gender lens into our work. The facilitators emphasized the importance of addressing gender and inclusion not as isolated concerns but as integral components that strengthen the organisation's work across various sectors. ICC member Deepti and R. Baskar facilitated a discussion on the composition and role of the Internal Complaints Committee's (IC). Feedback from the team regarding verbal orientation for all new joiners, including consultants and short-term employees, in addition to email was discussed and noted by the PoSH committee members for further action.

Group activities on different scenarios of workplace harassment and discrimination were carried out for further clarity.

RETREAT 2025

Praxis Retreat was held from 10th February - 14th February 2025 in Kodaikanal, Tamil Nadu.

The five-day retreat provided a space for critical reflection on what it takes to sustain and strengthen our work in an ever-evolving landscape. Together, we examined both internal and external factors shaping our efforts – acknowledging our strengths, recognising our limitations, and identifying the shifting dynamics that influence our ability to create impact.

The team focused on existing skills, acquiring new ones, as well as rethinking our strategies to remain effective and relevant. The team also focused on practical steps such as leveraging collaborations, continuous learning, and resource mobilisation as key drivers of sustainability.

The sessions included those on AI in the context of our work, strengthening compliance and financial sustainability, capacity assessment and building, gender and PoSH and strengthening organisational efficiency by reviewing the organisational strategy. .
